He would often take them to the park, and visit many of there favorite places. He was the glue that kept our family together. James picked up roles in life that he didn't have to, but because he wanted to. He was a father figure to his siblings, and a best friend to many of his cousins. He was a gift that kept on giving. James enjoyed playing games of dice, and listening to his favorite artist Kodak Black. He will truly be missed and remembered for telling jokes, and making everyone laugh whenever he spoke. He had a heart of gold and a smile that brought light to any room.
